The effect of cinnamon supplementation on blood pressure in patients with stage 1 hypertension

Protocol summary

Study aim
Effect of oral cinnamon supplementation on blood pressure in individuals with stage 1 hypertension

Design
A randomized, placebo-controlled, double-blind clinical trial

Settings and conduct
In this double-blind clinical trial study, new hypertensive patients referred to Imam Reza Hospital Clinic, Mashhad, Iran, with systolic pressure between 130-139 mmhg and or diastolic blood pressure 80-89 mmhg without receiving any anti hypertensive drug, are selected and confirmed by 24-hour Holter monitoring of the blood pressure. Patients are randomly divided into two groups of cinnamon and placebo.Patients in the intervention group are given three capsules of 500 mg cinnamon daily. Written informed consent is obtained from these patients. Lipid profile, fasting blood sugar and systolic and diastolic blood pressure are measured at baseline and 90 days after the start of the trial (end of the study). At the end of the study, patients will be re-tested under 24-hour blood pressure monitoring.

Participants/Inclusion and exclusion criteria
Inclusion criteria: Individuals of 40-79 years old, having systolic blood pressure of 139-130 mmhg and or diastolic blood pressure 80-89 mmhg (as measured in the office and confirmed by 24-hour Holter monitoring of the blood pressure).Exclusion criteria: presence of end organ damage during the last 6 months, secondary hypertension, pregnancy and lactation, patients receiving any type of antihypertensive medication.

Intervention groups
Patients with STAGE 1 hypertension

Main outcome variables
Systolic blood pressure Diastolic blood pressure BMI Lepid profile Fasting sugar

Randomization (investigator's opinion)
Randomized
Randomization description
Using random number extraction software, a list of number is obtained; based on the random-numbers list, participants are divided into two groups to receive either placebo or cinnamon.
Blinding (investigator's opinion)
Double blinded
Blinding description
Cinnamon and placebo will be purchased and given to the research unit. Both containers of cinnamon and placebo are quite similar in appearance and will be labeled as A or B.
